

MAN AND WIFE ARE MURDERED SIDE BY SIDE

Mr. and Mrs. Mucchio
Found with Heads
Crushed.

James Mucchio and his wife, Gelasti, were found murdered in their rooms, No. 453 Court street, Brooklyn, to-day. The murderer had first crushed their skulls with a hatchet; and then, to make sure that both were dead, he severed their jugular veins.

Soon after the discovery of the tragedy detectives arrested Alphonse Tedesco, of No. 517 Court street, on suspicion. Tedesco was in the habit of visiting Mucchio and playing cards with him. He was there on Tuesday night until late, and is supposed to have been there last night. In Tedesco's possession was found a roll of bloodstained bills amounting to $150.

Mucchio kept a bootblackening establishment in front of the rooms in which he lived. He was supposed to make a good living, and there are those who believed that he was prosperous. Some days ago Mucchio took in a boarder, a tall, young, clean-shaven, twenty-one, and one of the rooms in the rear of the bootblackening establishment was given to him.

In Mucchio's employ was an Italian youth, Giacomo Tuomo, who lives at No. 137 Prospect street. Tuomo was at the bootblackening stand until 9 o'clock last night.

"Mucchio and his wife were there when I left," said Tuomo in telling his story to the police. "They were waiting for late trade. I didn't see the boarder. I don't even know the boarder's name."

Discovered the Bodies.
Tuomo was the one to discover the murder to-day. He went to work about 7 o'clock, and the door of the bootblackening parlor was closed. He went into the tenement through the side door and found the door to the apartments occupied by the Mucchios ajar. In the front room lay the dead bodies of the husband and wife.

Tuomo yelled for the police, and there was a call for an ambulance. Dr. Fred R. Williams came from Brooklyn Hospital, and said that the man and woman had been dead for three or four hours.

Mucchio's body lay full on the floor. His wife's body was in a crouching position, as though she had first been beaten down with the hatchet and as she fell with her skull crushed the murderer had cut her throat from ear to ear.

The police theory is that the murders were committed for robbery. It is believed that the murderer entered the room when the couple were sleeping and that they gave battle to him. It is thought that the man was first beaten into insensibility and then the woman, and that the woman's throat was then cut. After that the man's throat was also cut. Stuck deep into Mucchio's neck was a broken knife blade.

It was learned that Mucchio had been in this country about ten years and that he was about fifty years old. He has been back to his native country twice since his arrival here and four years ago he had saved money to bring his wife to him. She was a frail woman with skin of parchment and looked even older than her husband.

While the police were investigating their case, Mucchio's wife, Mrs. Gelasti, had been asked if the Mucchios had any money. She said that they had some money, but how much she did not know.

"They have never told me much about their affairs," she said.

The police then asked for the boarder. He was nowhere to be found. A general alarm was sent out for him.
